Tech Tips: Android Boxes

If you are experiencing lag times, buffering, etc. it is likely not due to your internet connection.

You can use Android boxes on a 1.5meg or 6meg connection, it all depends on what you are trying to do with it. Not everything you try to stream will work, but most will. Some things will only download on a 10meg connection, depending on how the content was made. Do not rely on live TV. Android boxes use apps like Kodi, allowing you to install add-ons such as 1Channel, Genesis, Navi-X. It is important to note that this free access to movies and TV shows is from pirated content and sources cannot be relied on as reliable. Links to these add-ons are constantly being changed or taken down, while the content you are getting is coming from servers all over the world. Keep in mind that many other factors affect the download as well, such as connection speed on the other end, quality of the data, and how many people are trying to pull the same content at the same time.

If you are a KWIC Internet customer, please feel free to contact our technical support staff at 519-428-4650 for more information and potential setting changes to increase your Android box experience.
